Agricultural field in Pareklisia, Limassol

€500,000

 Pareklisia, Limassol

A 7,390 square meter field is available for sale in Pareklisia, Cyprus. The plot is large by local standards, giving a buyer substantial land to work with in a single parcel.

The land is currently agricultural, with no structures on site. Its scale makes it suited to a range of uses that a plot of this size can support, though any change of use or building plan would need to be confirmed independently. No details on water, electricity, or road access have been provided, so these should be verified before any decision is made.

Pareklisia is a village in the Limassol District, on the southern coast of Cyprus, sitting within the wider area that extends out from the city of Limassol. The surrounding landscape combines a traditional village core with newer low-rise development spreading along its edges, typical of settlements in this part of the district. Amenities in a village of this type generally include local shops and services, though the field itself sits apart from the built-up center on its own open plot.
